

SOCIAL MELANGE.

Events that Have Transpired During the Week in Duluth's Society.

The chronicles of the past week are not numerous, and yet there have been more social enjoyments than one would expect during the season of Lent. Not a single drama was produced at the Grand, but something more instructive and pleasing than the run of shows was to be found in the reading by Geo. W. Cable of his own novelette. The Bethel will follow this reading with one by Chas. Dickens, Jr., during the coming month.

An Enjoyable Affair.

The entertainment by the Loyal Temperance Legion at the First M. E. church, arranged for Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, was enjoyed last night by an audience crowding the church. Every exercise on the program was well brought out and with the exception of Carrol Graff, who was unfortunately detained at home by sickness, every person named on the program was present. The piano solo by Mrs. McKindley, the Bobolink temperance song by Bessie Heney, and the Valse Caprice by Mrs. Stocker were the solo appearances of the first part, and were all fine. Four choruses by the Loyal Temperance Legion made up the rest of Part I, and each and all received hearty applause. Part II was taken up by a pretty piece of character acting entitled "Mother Goose and her Temperance Childred Introduced by Columbia and Yankee Doodle." The performance was charming, and although the entertainment had lasted an hour and a half, it was with manifest regret the audience learned it had been concluded. In this appeared Ada Wood, Jamie Shannon, Daisy Hoyt, Arthur Geggie, Lulu Jones, Flossy Bailey, Ethel Birch, Grant Nicol, Clifford Higgins, Effie Miller, Scott Cash, Florence Silberstein, Bertie Chapman, Florence Monroe, Ruth Holgate, Ralph Davis, Benita Sabin, Clinton Markell, Ruth Markell, Anna White, Willie Arthur, Julia Salter, Francis Woodbridge, Raymond Kimberly, Worcester Kimberly and Virginia Guff, the last nine being children in the shoe. This shoe was about ten feet long with children who had been put to bed in it peering curiously out of holes in their peculiar habitation. During the evening Mrs. J. B. Geggie, president of the legion, called upon Dr. Dunn to give an outline of the work done by the society. This he did very tersely and effectively, showing that the legion has been in existence one year, beginning under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., and now having a membership of 200; that of these three-fourths voluntarily signed the triple pledge against intoxicating liquors, tobacco and profanity; that the society is self-sustaining and well supplied with books and temperance reading. The society has 200 red, white and blue badges, upon which the motto is inscribed, "Tremble King Alcohol; we shall grow up." It has been presented by admirers with eight fine banners, which were displayed among the other decorations last night. Half of the proceeds of this entertainment, given in the first public appearance of the society, goes to a Chicago temple; the rest to the local work here.

The entertainment this afternoon will attract a large audience.
