

HEBREWS AT PLAY.

Operetta Put on at Turner Hall Last Evening.

"Two Cuney Lemels" was the title of an operetta in four acts and eight scenes by A. Goldfaden given at Turner hall last night by local Hebrews. Following the play was a dance. Turner hall was only partly filled by Hebrews that had gathered to witness the play. The players spoke in the Hebrew tongue, and many of the younger generation of Hebrews present were unable to understand what was said, but the older heads enjoyed the play very much. Marcus Kassmir, a member of the police department, took the part of Pinchus, a conservative orthodox Jew. The part of Rebecca, wife of this orthodox Jew, was taken by Mrs. Goodman. Mr. Goodman acted the part of Solomon, a little progressive, and M. Casmir played Kune Lemel, step son of Pinchus. Kalmen-Shadschen was the part taken by Mrs. Casmir, and Miss Sarah Casmir took the part of Libele, his daughter, idiotic. The part of Max, a young student, was taken by Samuel Casmir.
