

ENJOYABLE CONCERT GIVEN.

Pupils of Bradbury School of Music
Entertain in the High School
Assembly Hall.

Assembly hall at the high school was filled to overflowing last night by persons who gathered to hear the recital given by pupils from the junior class, assisted by some from the vocal department of the Bradbury school of music. Every number of a long program was enthusiastically received and encored, although for lack of time no encores were given.

The program opened and closed with numbers well recited by the violin orchestra under the direction of Fred G. Bradbury. Solo violin numbers were given by Mildred Washburn, Arline Peachey, Edith Herrington, Hazel Aske and Senta Erd. A violin quartette "Resolution" was played by Walter Gouska, Erling Mostoe, Sargent McGonagle and Willie Burris.

From the piano department, under Mrs. F. G. Bradbury and Marx E. Oberndorfer, appeared Marie Sattler, Grace Pierce, Marion Brown, Flossie Orchard, Hazel Levin, Marjorie Shepherd, Doris Knutsen and Jenette Benson.

The dramatic department, under Miss Laura Frankenfield, was represented by four pupils, Anna Casey, Eva Sawyer, Effie Brotherton and Smith Spencer.

Assisting the junior class were three pupils from the vocal department, under direction of Milton B. Griffith, Tina Shaw, Jane Everington and Edgar W. Prophet.

Mr. Prophet's singing of the "Prologue" from Leoncavallo's Pagliani was one of the most interesting numbers. His voice was in fine form, and his reception amounted to an ovation.

Also assisting was the Orpheus male quartette, which is becoming a very popular organization. Their singing of Buck's "On the Sea, in the Storm, in the Night," occurred sufficiently opportune to avert a stampede which was threatened by extinction of the electric lights during the storm.

Four medals were awarded to pupils having made the most progress during the year's work. Edith Herrington was awarded first prize, a gold medal, in the violin department; Arline Peachey second prize, silver medal.

From the piano department, Hazel Levin won the gold medal and Marjorie Shepherd the silver medal. The pupils all did well.
