

WOMEN ISSUE COOK BOOK FOR CHARITY

Hunt Out Grandmother's Recipes to Aid Temple Emanuel Hospital.

GREAT VARIETY OF GOODIES

If you want to do the proper culinary thing, and make soups, pies, cakes and candies like mother, and even grandmother, used to make, you can't do better than to get one of those priceless Recipe Books, published by the ladies of Temple Emanuel, for the benefit of that institution.

In order to raise money, Miss Elsie Silberstein hit upon the plan of compiling a cook book of old family recipes, and last week they started a special Christmas sale of their new kitchen guide and encyclopaedia of culinary information.

There are innumerable receipts for old-fashioned goodies, such as soft ginger bread, cookies, fig tarte, "snippy doodles," and an infinite variety of sweets that go straight to the spot.

When it comes to more substantial cookery, the good old-fashioned housekeepers knew a thing or two about soups, fish and game, and they excelled in preparing dainties for the sick and convalescent. You don't catch your modern, bridge-playing lady of leisure making blackberry cordial, dandelion wine or mint punch as the dear, provident women of a century ago did, but, fortunately, the old recipes have survived in their families, and many of them are given in the cook book.

The contributors ransacked their attics, delved into old volumes, got down scrap books and quoted verbatim from Irish Bridget, "Aunt Mirandy," the French chef or grandmother herself, whoever happened to rule over the gastronomic destinies of their households, in preparing data for the book.

Among the contributors are: Mrs. B. Silberstein, Mrs. Henry Abraham, Mrs. L. S. Loeb, Mrs. S. I. Levin, Mrs. Max Albenberg, Mrs. E. A. Silberstein, Mrs. M. Kastriner, Mrs. J. D. Zien, Miss Elsie Silberstein, Mrs. J. M. Gidding, Mrs. P. H. Levy, Miss Claire Abraham, Mrs. A. Bondy, Mrs. Hirschfeld, Mrs. H. Heiman, Mrs. E. Kunody, Mrs. S. Goldberg, Mrs. Sig. Levy, Mrs. M. Levy, Mrs. M. Cook, Mrs. Gust. Levin, Mrs. M. Cornfield, Mrs. Victor Kohn, Mrs. Weizler, Mrs. Louis Bondy, Mrs. J. B. Sattler, Mrs. H. Hirsch, Mrs. M. Lefkovitz, Mrs. I. Prelmuth, Mrs.

I. Hammel, Mrs. Louis Newman and others.

The Temple Emanuel cook book is now on sale at the following stores: Silberstein & Bondy company, I. Prelmuth and J. M. Gidding & Co., or can be had direct from the publisher, Miss Elsie Silberstein.
