

CHARLES FRIEDMAN TO RESUME BUSINESS

TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT DESTROYED IN BURDICK HOUSE FIRE TO BE REOPENED.

The many friends of the genial Charles Friedman will be glad to learn that in a few days the tailoring business conducted by him in the Arcade and recently consumed by fire, will be resumed.

It is indeed a cruel blow to a merchant when he has established a thriving business and especially at a period when the bulk of year's trade is transacted to have it suddenly destroyed by fire. This is what happened to the well known tailoring and haberdashery concern owned by Charles Friedman.

He is showing great courage and perseverance and his friends great loyalty.

He, by declaring that he "shall" start all over again. They, by declaring that everything in their power will be done to further his success.

Mr. Friedman will resume the tailoring department only, in his former workshop over the Home Savings Bank at 122 W. Main St.

He leaves today for Chicago where he will purchase a line of high grade woolens and expects to open about Tuesday or Wednesday. We all wish him success and plenty of it.
