

CRUSHED TO DEATH

Henry Berman's Body Found Mangled
To Pieces.

Henry Berman the man who has been an almost constant guest of Sheriff Hoarby for several years past, is dead. His body was found on the St. Paul & Duluth tracks near Fifth avenue west early this morning, mangled almost beyond recognition. It was removed in the patrol wagon to Stewart's morgue. Berman was a most pitiable victim to alcohol. He was a slave to the cup. Seldom was he absent from the chain gang for two days at a time. At one time he owned the property where Silberstein & Gandy's store stands. He was probably worth $14,000. N. J. Miller has acted as his guardian for some time, and has charge of his money. It is thought Berman may have been sleeping beneath a box car, which was moved by a switch engine, crushing him to death. His body was cold when found about 2.30 o'clock.
