W. H. Heinback and wife, of Jamestown, are visiting friends in this city.

The city schools opened yesterday morning with a largely increased attendance.

A. G. Millen, late of the Herald, will start this morning for Bismarck, where he may engage again in newspaper work.

Chief of Police Daniels returned Sunday morning from La Crosse, where he attended a reunion of the Iron Brigade of Wisconsin.

The family of S. Levy returned Sunday on the propeller Toledo from a four weeks' visit at Marquette and other Lake Superior towns.

Jas. J. Johnson, late of Chicago, now representing Yanz & Howes, wholesale grocers, is in Duluth upon his first visit, and expresses himself as surprised to find so much of a city here.

At a late hour last night we learned that our friend Al. Peterson will be married tomorrow morning to a diningroom girl at the Merchants hotel, whose name is not learned. In the evening they will be given a reception at Grand army hall.

H. P. Wieland and C. C. Wieland left Duluth on the 19th of July for a trip through the Pacific Northwest. They have returned and given an account of the trip. They went over the Northern Pacific to Puget Sound, visiting Olympia, Tacoma, Portland and Seattle. They think the climate out that way is damp and clammy; and that the chances for business there are not so good as here. A great deal of lumbering is going on in that region, but it is not so profitable as around Duluth. This will be manifest when it is stated that logs there have to be hauled in the summer, for the reason that it is too muddy in the winter. Their fruit, this year at least, is practically a failure, by reason of frost last spring. There is no more fruit there than in Duluth, in proportion to the trees. The country as a whole is nothing compared with Minnesota or Dakota. The Wieland brothers will again settle down in Duluth.

The Northwestern Labor Exchange, with central office at St. Paul, opened a branch office in this city yesterday morning, in the basement under Spalding's store formerly occupied by Geo. Ege in the same business. There is no question whatever that this is a most reliable agency. It has offices in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Chicago, Fargo, Davenport, Cedar Rapids, Eau Claire and Duluth, employing men for all kinds of work. No women need apply, however.

A good joke was played on a well known citizen Saturday, but he rather turned the tables on one of the jokers. Three of his companions succeeded in getting away with his watch, which they pawned for drinks at McGowan's bar. The owner of the watch threatened one of the three with arrest, however, and frightened him so that he went and redeemed the watch. The last act wasn't so funny in his opinion as the first.

The blacksmith shop and all the tools of the missing Hans Urholt were sold at auction by the chief of police yesterday for the benefit of the creditors. J. N. Richey bought the shop, on West Superior street for $54. Mr. Richey owns the lot on which it stands. Most of the tools were purchased by John Peterson, blacksmith. Other buyers were O. Stenson, Greenwood & Co., and A. B. McLean & Co. The proceeds of the sale were $184.50.

Of course no one can fully enjoy the opera without being able to get a near view of the characters on the stage; and the moral of this brief story is that if you have not been to C. F. Johnson's and bought your opera glass yet, you have no time to lose. Out of the several hundred that he has recently brought on, he only has a few dozen left; but among those left, are some of the best and some of the most elegant and costly.

sept. 17-It.

There is no doubt whatever that the grand opera house will be already by Thursday evening. Those of our citizens who have not yet visited it, and there are many of them, will be surprised and delighted by its beauty and elegance.
