

POLICE COURT NOTES.

Judge Edson had a big grind in municipal court yesterday. For some time past the police have been on the trail of the numerous individuals in the city who have been carrying on second hand clothing businesses without first obtaining the license required by law. Yesterday nine of the offenders were arrested and some of them appeared in court. They pleaded guilty to the charge placed against them and will receive their sentences on Monday. The remaining offenders will appear on Monday, and as the evidence in all cases is considered conclusive the police say that all intend pleading guilty to the charge. Those arrested against whom complaints have been filed are Henry Mark, Alex Duby, S. Karon, Astroy Fox, William Goldstein, Slapiro & Bloom, S. Meleritz, Joseph Oreckovskoi and Max Shrvoyrdsky.

Frank Ellison who was up for a vag had $10 at his disposal to put up in lieu of a bond for his appearance for trial on Monday.

Robert McNorton, whom Andrew Wilson accuses of having stolen a boat at New Duluth on June 22, pleaded not guilty to a charge of petit larceny and his trial was set for Monday.

The larceny case against John Knaff was dismissed, defendant paying the costs. Oliver Maggard paid a fine of $1 and costs for allowing his stable to remain in a bad condition.
