

Herewith is printed a series of pictures of Miss Josephine Sattler, the vivacious daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sattler, of 213 Fifth avenue West, and one of the most popular girls of the exclusive Jewish society of Duluth.

Miss Sattler, who is rather smaller than the average woman, is the merriest little creature alive, and the most indefatigable. No function is considered quite complete without her, and at picnics, and dancing parties, weddings and card parties her cheery laugh is sure to be heard before one has been present long.

She is a Duluth girl, and was educated at the local schools. Since her debut she has spent much of her time visiting in other cities, and her return home is invariably the signal for fun to take a new lease on life.

The photographs are reproduced from a series taken this summer, "for fun."
