COLORS

Rich Colors Are to Predominate This Summer.

ALL rumor points to the fact that this is not to be a white summer. It is to be one full of color and brilliancy.

This talk springs up every year, but it has more foundation now than for a decade past, because all white has been so much in the background this winter.

Yet there should be one or more white gowns in every woman's summer wardrobe. Colors are not comforting when the thermometer is over 80.

All the usual white lingerie fabrics will be offered and people will take their choice between these and colors, but the white frocks will certainly show some novel touches to bring them into comparison with the green and pink and blue and yellow gowns.

The first novelty suggested is a combination of fine embroidery with Brussels net. The eyelet design is used on a foundation of sheer linen and the net is the washable variety that once went by the name of wash blond.

New models show this combination in attractive form. There are one-piece frocks, with 15 inches of embroidery on the lower skirt, and a round bodice effect of it. The rest of the gown is of the coarse white net, used plain without tucks or pleats.

The sleeves are of net, long and tight, fastened at wrist with silk buttons and loops that are placed an inch or two apart on the material and not on the seam. For these new sleeves do not open. They depend on the lapping between buttons and loops for their tightness.

There is a round yoke, quite shallow and babyish above the embroidery. It ends just below base of neck, with a flat edge of lace.

There is a girdle about two inches above the waist line made of colored satin, with a rosette and long ends in front.

The fashion for wearing colors has brought about the tinted corset cover or blouse slip to wear under transparent white blouses.

These slips have little fullness, are cut square back and front, edged with lace and finished with a three-inch cap over top of arm under which is put the shield.

As pale pink is the leading color for this slip, the first effect is rather startling. When the blouse is extra sheer it looks as though no lining had been provided.

There is no diminution in the popularity of the butterfly.

It is worn by rich women as a corsage ornament made of vari-colored jewels mounted in a framework of gold or platinum.

It is bought for 75 cents by those who are not rich and worn in the hair or on a low bodice.

The latter ones are made up of gold and silver spangles on a tiny net frame, and when tucked away in a bow of tulle on the bodice, or pinned at the top of the Psyche muffs, the effect is all that is desired.

The girl who wears the butterfly and a bow ribbon together in her hair makes a mistake. Both of them make the coiffure heavy and inartistic. One is quite enough.
