

POLICE CALLED TO PUT END TO DISTURBANCE

The police were called yesterday afternoon to quell a disturbance at the Duluth Iron & Metal works, where Heikki Ranvola, an employe, and Z. Zalk, the foreman of the shops, participated in a near fight. Both men, and also Oscar Hillin, a bystander who interfered, were taken to the police headquarters by Patrolman Honnold, where upon investigation all were released after being given a reprimand by Chief Troyer. Ranvola who is a giant in size, had a dispute with Zalk over his wages, and not being satisfied with the outcome of the dispute, the workman is alleged to have attacked the foreman, driving him into his office. In the mix-up, Ranvold fell headlong onto a pile of iron and his head was so badly cut and bruised that Dr. W. P. Abbott was called to dress it.
