SEEN IN THE SHOPS

Two exquisite summer Japanese kimonos were shown in one of the large local department stores. One was of turquoise blue brocaded silk in a light weight, trimmed with hand-embroidered pink cherry blossoms, and sold at $15. The other was of the most delicate of Japanese crepe, also in tones of blue with tiny tracings of salmon pink and russet. This one was marked $12.50.

Thomsonite jewelry was shown in various form at one of the local jewelers. There were rings set with the curious pinky-green stones at from $8 to $15, brooches from $10 to $20, and stick pins from $2 to $15.

Natty flannel outing jackets are shown in half-inch stripes of navy blue and white or turquoise blue and white, to sell at $5.

A chocolate set and tray in hand-painted china of an unusual design was shown in one of the shops at $35. The body of the pieces was in Prussian blue with an enamel-like luster, and each piece had a band of design on a cream background. The design was of odd dragon birds, placidly crossing their feet and looking reproachfully over their shoulders as they apparently marched in a line. The colors were soft and harmonious, and the ludicrous note gave the set originality, but did not make it inartistic.

Ratine, the new washable fabric that suggests a cross between thin voile and Turkish toweling, in grays, tans and white, is shown in gowns and suits that sell from $19.50 to $29.50. Different materials in pompadour design are usually combined with ratine in making up, as the figured trimming is effective with the plain goods.

One-piece dresses in simple and attractive designs for summer are shown, many of them at $12.50 to $15. Linen gowns in blues, tans, greens and American Beauty shades are made up effectively with no other trimming than a bit of embroidering done in white. There are also pretty gowns in the tub silks, with fine stripes of black and white or blue and white, at about the same price.

PUBLIC MARKETS.

From the Springfield Republican: Munich has the finest public market in Europe, but Leipzig is to have the grandest railway station. Only a fortnight ago the greater part of the new "Bahnhof" was opened to traffic. It is the work of ten years, and neither thought nor cost has been spared to make it a model of elegance and convenience. It has a frontage of 350 yards, and 400 trains daily will run over its 26 tracks. It will be finished in 1918 at a cost of $25,000,000, a sum which even New York must respect.

carrying on many of the activities of the senior classes of larger schools. In addition to the regular commencement exercises, the seniors will give a class play, and their annual, the Industrial Echo, will soon be out.

One of the largest graduating classes in the history of the Irving Industrial high school is this year's class of 17. The class is ambitious and is a merry little comedy, centering around a case of mistaken identity. The cast is as follows: George Richmond, Clifford Stowel; Captain Skinner, R. E. Williams; Ferd, a country gentleman, Isadore Abramson; Mr. Hamilton, John Simpson; Nellie Richmond, George's wife, Mildred Simons;

Miss Skinner, the captain's daughter, Florence Salter; Nellie Hunting, Edith Pollock; Nellie, a servant, Edna Spindler.

The class officers are: Clifford Stowel, president; Theresa Quinn, vice president; Anna Newbauer, secretary, and Roy Williams, treasurer.

York city, Mrs. Isabella Goodwin, police matron, was advanced to the rank of first grade detective, at an annual salary of $2250. This was in recognition of her service in bringing about the capture of men who had robbed bank messengers of $25,000. Police Commissioner Waldo explained that under the law he could appoint "any member of the force" to the first grade, and, as Mrs. Goodwin was a member of the force as police matron, he was justified in appointing her.

Minneapolis club women are seeking some effective means of self-defense for girls and women in case of attack on the streets. Whistles would, they say, be the simplest way to call not only policemen but citizens to the rescue in case of need.
