A special program of orations, readings and recitations was presented at the meeting of the Junto Literary society yesterday afternoon. Arthur Helam, Irving Grover and Homer Holdren spoke. Albert Armstrong read a humorous selection, and Morris Litman recited. All the numbers were well received, especially Ingersoll's "Dream of the War," as given by Homer Holdren, and the recitation "Gully or Not Gully" by Morris Litman. Following the program, Robert D. Brackett announced the oratorical contests which will occur after the close of the first semester. Mr. Brackett stated that he would hear the selections of the contestants, in private, and give aid where it was needed. Those appearing on the programs of the club have usually consulted Mr. Brackett for advice in choosing selections and have received valuable coaching from him.

The girls' Bible class, which has been holding sessions regularly this winter at the Y. W. C. A. met yesterday afternoon for study.

At French rink this afternoon, the high school hockey team will play the Irving high school team. Students of both schools will attend in a body. There will be skating before and after the game.
