Beneath a canopy of smilax in the sunroom at the bride's home last evening the marriage of Miss Marie Agatlin, daughter of A. L. Agatlin, 2402 East Fifth street, to Dr. William Pitt Abbott of this city was solemnized.

Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was played by La Brosse's orchestra while the bridal procession, led by the Rev. George R. Gebauer of the First Unitarian church passed through the hall and living room to the sunroom, where the service was read.

Dr. Abbott was attended by George Suffer. Next came the two little ribbon bearers, Catherine Abbott and Eulalie Chisholm, then the bridesmaids, Miss Lois Fee and Miss Margaret McKinley, and last the bride on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage.

The bride wore a gown of embroidered chiffon over white satin, trimmed with rose point lace. Her veil was caught with a wreath of orange blossoms, and her shower bouquet was of white sweet peas and lilies of the valley. Miss McKinley's gown was of pink satin, with an overdress of net. Miss Fee's was embroidered chiffon over satin of the same shade, and both carried colonial bouquets of pink roses.

The ribbon bearers were dressed in simple white frocks, with wreaths of forget-me-nots and pink rosebuds in their hair.

The sun parlor, massed with smilax and white peonies, in its half outdoor suggestion, gave the motif for the charmingly original house decorations. Palms, pink and white peonies, pink roses and ferns, were profusely used in the living room. Deep yellow roses formed the table centerpiece in the dining room, with bouquets of black-eyed susans about the room. The hall was decorated with baskets of cuterups and marigolds, and the banisters were twined with smilax.

The veranda was gay with red peonies, and porch furniture placed out under the trees, with lanterns and electric lights strung from tree to tree, gave an air of festivity to the lawn. During the reception which followed the ceremony the orchestra played outdoors.

Mrs. Agatlin was assisted by Mrs. P. F. Clark, who presided at the punch bowl, and by Mrs. William Harrison, Mrs. A. M. Chisholm, Mrs. Frank de Groat, Mrs. J. N. McKinley, Mrs. William Prindle and Mrs. C. E. de Witt.

Dr. and Mrs. Abbott have left for a two weeks trip, and will be at home at 2803 East Seventh street after Aug. 15.

"The Indians are not dying out," said Dr. Thomas Waterman, instructor in anthropology in the University of California. "There are as many now as there were in the same territory in Columbus' time, and the United States census shows that there were not nearly so many Indians in North America when it was discovered as has been supposed, he says. The annals of the Lewis and Clarke expedition are the basis, according to Dr. Waterman, for the fact that the United States armed with Indians but this band of men followed along the river where all the Indian settlements were located, so naturally got an exaggerated idea of their number."

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Ford and Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Trott are chaperoning the following young people at a house party on Madeline island for two weeks: Miss Lola Trott, Miss Emily Sharabon, Miss Clara Kennedy, Miss Mae Bradbury, Miss Marie Swigart of Davenport, Iowa, Miss Eleanor Reichert and Miss Kate Chamberlain; Clifton Ford, Ford Campbell, Earl Fattison, Frank Cash, Mel McLaren, Harold Campbell, Arthur Rude and Dudley Trott.

Forty stray cats were found in the cellar of a Chicago restaurant when it was renovated recently. The cats were sent to the Humane society, which maintains a large cattery, sorting out the best cats and chloroforming the rest.

So many of the stray cats are found in certain parts of the city that they are now regarded as a menace to health, and the aldermen have been asked to take measures to exterminate or care for the animals.

Mrs. W. E. Meagher entertained at an outing party on the Fourth at Lakewood, near the Talmadge river, in honor of her guests, Miss Jane Roessler, Miss Louise Gunther, Miss Pauline Miller, Miss Mabel Porter, Miss Boulah Hubbard and Miss Jean Porter. There were 25 in the party.

Miss Raphael Goldstein was given a surprise party by a number of friends at her home, 817 Fourth avenue East, Friday evening. The evening was devoted to music and games. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Goldstein, Mr. and Mrs. Stein, Mr. and Mrs. S. Litman, Mr. and Mrs. S. Shusterman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Shusterman and Mrs. G. Sosnovsky; Eva Stein, Ida Stein, Sarah Shusterman, Lena Ostrov, Lena Kernes, Anna Litman, Rose Litman, Cella Singer, Rose Kapustin, Edith Shapiro, Mary Siden, Sophie Shapiro, Pearl Cohen, Lena Stein, Gertrude Cohen, Sarah Goldstein, Hannah Kanner and Helen Goldman; Frank Weber, Nathan Love, Elvian Stein, Joe Litman, Morris Litman, Ben Goldstein, J. What can be done for the physical and mental improvement of the race through eugenics will be discussed at the first international eugenics congress, which will be held this month at the London university, London, England.

Race mixtures and its effects, especially as seen in America, where a special study of the subject has been made, will form an important part of the discussion. Five or six hundred men of science are expected to attend, a large contingent being sent from this country and Germany, France, Spain and Italy also being represented. Sir William Osler, originator of the "chloroform of the aged" theory, will read a paper on "Eugenics and Medical Profession," giving the view of the medical world.

Mrs. S. Strudgeon, 3203 Minnesota avenue, entertained last evening in honor of the eleventh birthday of her son Percy. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Sitt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Toan, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ulrich, Mrs. J. D. Campbell, Ruth Strudgeon, Bessie Campbell, and Isaac Caywood.

Empress Josephine's "garden of roses" has been successfully reproduced at the chateau of Malmesdon, Paris, and will be open to visitors from now on. Nearly two hundred varieties of roses will be seen in full bloom, just as they were supposed to have been in her famous garden. She had a particular fancy for roses and spent lavishly for her wealth and her time, so the tradition goes, in order to develop the finest rose garden of the land.

Mrs. F. L. Barrows, 12 North Nineteenth avenue East, chaperoned a party of young people at a picnic last evening, on Park Point.

Mrs. Smith made her first visit to Duluth—since the accident more than a year ago in which she fell, breaking her hip—on Wednesday, as the guest of Miss Mary McFadden. She has quite recovered from the effects of the accident, and with her small daughter Marcella is now visiting her parents, Commissioner and Mrs. Nell McInnes of Eveleth.

Anyone living in an unscrupulous house in Memphis, Tenn., is subject to arrest and a jail sentence, according to a measure passed there recently. Policemen have been instructed to keep a sharp watch for houses that are not protected against the onslaughts of the fly, and take the inhabitants promptly into custody.

Miss Isabel Pearson, organist and choir director at Trinity pro-cathedral, who has recently been elected in the colleague class of the American Guild of Organists at its last meeting in New York, is the first Duluth woman to be so honored. Horace Reyner and A. F. M. Custance are the only other Duluth members. The organization is an elective one, composed of organists, whose work in that line has become recognized.

The felling of the trees in which their dear papooses were buried has been the cause of a week of mourning to women of the Euchee band of the Creek Indian tribe in Oklahoma. Since the earliest times, the Euchees have buried their dead children in hollow trees, with boards or bark over the openings. Now that the white men have bought the lands and are clearing them, the trees are disappearing and with them the bones of the papooses.

Miss Jessie MacInnes of Worcester, Mass., who was bridesmaid at the Prudden-Eaton wedding last week, was the guest of honor at an informal tea given by Mrs. A. E. Prudden, 326 Thirteenth avenue East, Tuesday afternoon. Miss MacInnes left last Wednesday for her home.

In working French knots the thread often tangles. Try twisting the thread around the needle one way for one knot and the other way for the next one. Alternating in this way keeps the thread straight.

Mrs. J. A. Keyes, president-elect of the Saturday club, entertained the committee chairmen of the club Tuesday afternoon at her home to discuss the work of the club for next year. Baskets of daisies were arranged about the rooms, and smaller bouquets of them formed the place favors.

The life of a hermit is to be preferred to the "sham social life," according to Miss Alma Piltzner, the daughter of a wealthy Cincinnati family, who is living alone in the Topanga canyon, eight miles from Santa Monica, Cal. Miss Piltzner says she is happy on the little ranch where she has built a cabin and raises vegetables and hunts for her living and that she will spend her life there.

Miss Jane Meiville, 1911 East Fourth street, and Miss Stella St. Jacques entertained at a Japanese garden party Wednesday evening in compliment to Mary and John O'Brien, who will leave soon to make their home in the west.

Robert Burns, the youth, has been made one of the characters in a recent play by an English military officer, Captain Lennox Kendall. The play is a four-act romantic drama of the period of 1780 and will be produced in London this fall.
