

BODY OF VAN BAALEN WILL BE BROUGHT HERE

The body of J. D. Van Baalen, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Van Baalen, 524 East Third street, who died yesterday in San Francisco of bullet wounds inflicted Saturday by Leah Anderson, has been taken in charge by the Elks' lodge there, and will be sent to Duluth at once.

Charles Freimuth, brother-in-law of Van Baalen, asked the Elks of Duluth to arrange with the San Francisco lodge to care for the body. It is expected to arrive here Thursday. None of the dead man's relatives here will go to the coast.

Mrs. Van Baalen, who is visiting her husband's parents, has been informed of the tragedy, but maintains a stoical attitude. "I do not believe Mrs. Van Baalen, in her weakened condition, realizes the full meaning of the terrible affair," said Mr. Freimuth last night.

News of the shooting was withheld from the wife for a time because she is in poor health, and it was feared that the shock might be fatal. She was told of her husband's death upon the arrival in Duluth of his father, D. J. Van Baalen, who was in International Falls when the first news of the shooting reached here.

Mr. Freimuth states that Mrs. Van Baalen has made no statement about the allegations of the Anderson woman that Van Baalen traveled about the country with her and promised to divorce his wife.
