Mrs. James Wanless and Mrs. L. A. Marvin were hostesses to the Cecelian society yesterday afternoon at the home of the former, 1632 East Superior street.

Mrs. K. A. Ostergren read a paper on "The Modern Orchestra," giving a historical sketch of the orchestra from the earliest times. Haydn she described as the father of the modern orchestra, which had its culmination in Wagner. She described the different instruments in their relation to emotional expression. Mrs. L. A. Marvin in "Innovations in the Orchestra Made by Beethoven," spoke especially of his introduction of the scherzo. Both papers were interesting in the extreme.

Mrs. Tom Miller generously played a Schubert number in addition to the Sarasate selection scheduled. Mrs. Homer Anderson delighted her hearers with a Glinka number. Other delightful features of the afternoon were supplied by Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker, Miss Clara Stocker, Miss Josephine Carey, Mrs. Harry Strong, Mrs. J. R. Kuth and Miss Winnifred Hicks.

The bride wore a pale blue crepe de chine gown trimmed in white lace and she carried a bridal bouquet of pink and white carnations. The bridesmaid was gowned in lavender silk poplin.

The exact number of garments distributed in this year's "Round Up" of the Needlework Guild was 4112. In addition to the garments, $100 in money was turned in by the section presidents.

The money received is always spent for garments for the poor as emergency requires. The cold weather in January usually calls for generous expenditures. With few exceptions, garments and cash are used for the poor of this city, but occasionally needs on the range are met. The city's charities are unanimous in praise of the guild.
