Spring, president of the organization, to attend the free lecture Friday night at the Commercial club by Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells of Los Angeles. The general public is invited to attend this talk on the work of policewomen. Mrs. Wells is by ancestry, birth and training a civic and reform worker.

She was pastor's assistant in Plymouth church, Brooklyn. Interested in the social mission of the church, she passed two years at Hartford Theological seminary and school of religious pedagogy, preparing lectures in the message of the prophets for today which were later delivered at Chautauquas and Bible conferences. Deeply moved by the scientific study of crime in the light of applied Christianity, Mrs. Wells gave many addresses in its behalf and later applied for appointment as a regular police officer, because, as she puts it, "it is easier to talk about things than to do them." Her appointment being the first of its kind, and brought about by her own efforts, awakened not only national but international response.
