

Youthful Thespians to Stage Play Giving Lesson in Zionism

Rudolph Segal, president of the Young Judea club of Duluth, and Miss Marie Cohen, well known amateur performer, will take the leading parts in "Gordon vs. Gordon," a comedy to be presented Dec. 30 in the auditorium of Central high school. Segal takes the part of the husband and Miss Cohen that of the wife in an entanglement due to the differences between the two on Zionism. Mrs. A. Nogelson is the coach.

The play is intended to entertain as well as teach a lesson in Zionism. The husband, imbued with the desire to see the Jews have a homeland in Palestine, is often away from home working on committees to further his aims. Incidentally, one of the committee is an attractive young woman. The wife's jealousy is aroused. She sues for divorce and in the courtroom the true character of her husband is revealed to her. The divorce proceedings end there. They live happily ever afterward and she is converted to the cause of Zionism.

Others in the cast are: Emil Welner, Nathan Cohen, Sam Braverman, Helen Cook, Bessie Litman, Dave Sherman, Cecil Gotkin, Eva Lent, Lillian Harris, and Benjamin Cohen. Sam J. Segel is stage manager.
