

GRAND JURY REPORT GOES TO HIGH COURT

Supreme Bench Expected to Make Quick Decision on Validity of Jury Action

With a brief endeavoring to explain why Bismarck county's 1928 grand jury should be invalidated filed with the state supreme court yesterday, county officials today were hoping the state court would make a quick decision on the question of the validity of the body.

The brief was filed yesterday by Crum & Crum, local attorneys.

Asking the state court to decide the case on "analogy, public policy, and reason" because there is no precedent to this case, the brief lists several instances in which the attorneys claim county officials did not substantially comply with the law in selecting the jury.

A brief filed by George S. Register, state attorney, claims that a jury cannot be invalidated by law.

The supreme court has been requested to make a decision in the case by Judge Fred Jansons, who ruled that the jury was legal when he refused to grant a motion to quash grand jury indictments against five defendants in January.

Funeral services will be held at St. Joseph's Catholic church, of which Mrs. Martin was a member, at 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

Five daughters and two sons have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their bereavement. They are Mrs. M. F. Howe, Glendale, Calif.; Mrs. Peter Wais, Weyburn, Neb.; Mrs. Frank Snyder, Mrs. E. Detroit Students Protest as Prexy Seals Coeds' Lips

Detroit, March 14.—(P)—The campus of the University of Detroit was stirred today by an announcement by the president, the Rev. Mr. John P. McNichols, that the 50 coeds enrolled in the university would be expelled if they were detected conversing with any of the 2,000 male students on the university grounds.

The ban on conversation was defended vigorously by John B. Malley, associate editor of the Varsity News, student paper. Malley's statement said: "The president's dictum is in the greatest thing to come to U. of D. in years. The coeds way and harass the male students. They destroy the studios and scholarly atmosphere of the college with their blarneyisms. It is the greatest single step in the history of education."

A coed reply was, "one reason Malley hates girls is because he can't dance. He's asked me to teach him now. He can't dance and the girls can't be annoyed with him."

ARIZONA PUBLISHER, DWIGHT HEARD, DIES

Cattle Man, Cotton Grower, Banker and Booster Was Roosevelt Follower

Phoenix, Ariz., March 15.—(P)—Dwight B. Heard, publisher of the Arizona Republican, died at his home last night. Death followed a heart attack.

Mr. Heard held such a title as champion of and for Arizona. It might have been given to Dwight Bancroft Heard without dispute.

Although born nearly as far away from that state as was possible in the United States, he was, from about the age of 25, one of its most enthusiastic boosters. His name was connected with practically every project looking toward the advancement of Arizona.

Going to Arizona as a young man primarily to restore his failing health, in which he was successful, he eventually became a cattle man, cotton grower, banker and publisher. He was a close student of reclamation and irrigation projects and was recognized as an authority on those subjects.

During 1907 and 1908 Mr. Heard devoted much of his time as one of the leaders in opposition to joint statehood for Arizona and New Mexico. He was chairman of a committee of 20 citizens of Arizona who went to Washington to actively protest against the proposed joint statehood and to insist upon separate admission of Arizona as a state. He also served by appointment of the legislature as one of the Arizona commission to oppose the Swing-Johnson Boulder Dam bill in Washington in 1927.

In 1912 Mr. Heard was one of the 53 who signed the call for the Progressive national convention at Chicago, which nominated Theodore Roosevelt for president. He also went on the Progressive ticket in Arizona as a candidate for presidential elector.

In the same year Mr. Heard purchased the Arizona Republican at Phoenix. He organized and became president of the Arizona Publishing company to carry out the publication of the newspaper.

Mr. Heard was born in Boston, Mass., May 1, 1869, and was of a family who had lived as farmers in the village of Wayland for 200 years. His earliest American ancestor was William Heard, who came from England in 1623. Before going to Arizona Mr. Heard resided in Chicago, where he was connected with a wholesale hardware house. There in 1894 he married Miss Marie P. Bartlett. They had one child, Bartlett Bradford Heard.
