Son of Kurblock Spoon Saves At Percy Jones Marine's Life

Says He Hasn't Heard of Packard Strikes

BATTLE CREEK, March 31—Pvt. Melvin Kurblock, 20, wounded son of John Kurblock of Detroit, whose plea was reported by UAW-CIO leaders to have ended the recent strike at the Packard plant, arrived today at the Percy Jones Hospital.

Pvt. Kurblock, who lost his right leg and suffered severe injuries to the other in the explosion of a land mine while with the Ninth Army on the Rhine, said he expects his parents to visit him here on Easter.

"I do not know anything about the strikes—we didn't think about anything but Germans over there," Melvin said. A brother, Sgt. Albert Kurblock, has been reported missing in action, but Melvin has not yet been informed because of his grave condition.

Hudson Stewards To End Strike

Vote to Go Back to Work Monday

Striking stewards of the Hudson Motor Car Co. voted to return to work Monday morning after Claude Bland, president of Local 154, UAW-CIO, told them the War Labor Board had agreed to set up a special arbitration panel to hear their grievances "as soon as the strike is over."

The strike, which has thrown 13,000 workers out of jobs, halted production of P-38 and Helldiver plane wings and bodies for B-29 Superforts.

Chief union grievance was the discharge of Robert Seibert, assistant steward, for allegedly "crimping" war production, and the company's refusal to negotiate the matter, Bland declared. Bland was supported in his "back to work" stand by Seibert, the union's stewards and board of directors.
